MEMORANDUM FOR: Director of Central Intelligence
SUBJECT : Overseas Writers' Luncheon Invitation

At morning meeting, I mentioned an invitation from Nick Daniloff of the Overseas Writers. This is a group founded in 1921.

The leading foreign affairs correspondents attend its occasional luncheons, e.g., Walter Cronkite of CBS, Murrey Marder of the Washington Post, Dick Valeriani of NBC, Bernard Gwertzman of The New York Times and the AP and UPI men.

They are interested in 10-20 minutes on the role of CIA and some of your Peking experiences, plus a 30-40 minute question and answer period.

About 60 persons would show up. You could have it on background or on the record. I and one other person are included in the invitation.

This is one you should take on somewhere down the road a bit.

Dear George:

You helped make the Overseas Press Club's awards dinner Monday night one of the best ever. So again, many, many thanks.

--only now some of my friends keep asking what were those wilderness acts I committed?

Best regards.

Sincerely,
